Headline:
Becoming cloudy with showers. Strong winds.

Today:
A clear start for many with some bright spells of sunshine. Cloud and showers soon moving southeast across the region, these merging into longer spells of rain. Strong winds may ease a little. Feeling rather cold. Maximum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Tonight:
Remaining largely windy and cloudy this evening with outbreaks of light rain or showers. Winds easing overnight as cloud clears eastern districts by dawn. Becoming dry but rather cold. Minimum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Thursday:
A mostly dry and bright start, though rather cold. Winds will be mostly light before a band of rain and strong winds approaches from the west later. Maximum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Mostly dry and clear Friday with a moderate northwesterly breeze. A dry start Saturday but rain arriving from the west later as winds strengthen. Likely cloudy with patchy rain Sunday.
